HIDDEN AGENDA Lap dance class at Holistic Health Awareness Center, 5550 S. State St., 773-596-1885, divadancelessons.com

We can dance if we want to!

★ Check it out if you ... want to feel sexy while doing some exercise, are looking for a fun way to work out, want to give someone a special holiday surprise.

The details: From 2 to 3 p.m. Saturday, the women-only combination dance and fitness class teaches some moves for giving a lap dance. Form fitting clothing is encouraged, but if you feel more comfortable in baggy sweats, that's OK too. Drop-ins are welcome for a $20 fee, and the classes typically include four to eight people, with some participants registering to come to the course weekly to learn a full routine. It's not super hard-core exercise, but the idea is to get a little more active with exercises for toning, tightening and increasing flexibility while enjoying your own sensuality. The last regular class of the season is Saturday, but they will be restarting in January. Check the Web site for dates of special dance workshops.

The payoff: Getting active in a way that's fun to show off.

A transit rider in London demonstrates paying for a fare using a “smart” credit card. The CTA is proposing the same type of card to be used by riders in Chicago. PRESS ASSOCIATION FILE

IN THE CARDS

Love using plastic? You're in luck.

The CTA told the Tribune on Tuesday that a “smart” version of credit cards and bank debit cards will be accepted for payment of CTA bus and train fares in about a year. Consumers ultimately will be able to carry one card to cover just about any expense, from lattes to laundry bills, airfares to Frankfurt and subway rides to Clark and Division Streets.

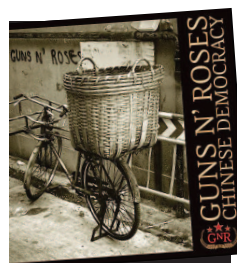

The whole idea got RedEye thinking about other things we'd like to pay for using a catch-all credit card.

Gifting
Starting Sunday, the Illinois Treasury Department is auctioning off items from abandoned bank safe deposit boxes—jewelry and the like—on eBay. The perfect opportunity for using that plastic.

Booting

VINCE VS. VINCE

Battle of the Christmas flicks

Vince Vaughn is two for two this holiday season as he gets ready to roll out his second Christmas comedy in as many years. Looking forward to the Wednesday release of “Four Christmases,” RedEye decided to pit Vaughn against himself to see how his new holiday flick might fare in comparison to last year’s “Fred Claus.” REDEYE

‘FRED CLAUS’ VINCE

Santa’s brother visits the North Pole to get back in touch with his family. Fortunately, he’s there to help out when things go awry. Also, lots of elves.

THE PREMISE*‘FOUR CHRISTMASES’ VINCE

A couple who have made a holiday tradition of ditching their fractured families gets caught spending Christmas with all four folks in a frenzy of holiday visiting.

THE PAYDAY

Vaughn banked a reported $20 million to play Santa’s big brother.

No word yet on Vaughn’s paycheck this time, but if history is any indication ...

THE BUZZ

Last year, it seemed like everyone was talking about Paul Giamatti co-starring as Santa.

Jon Favreau, Vaughn’s buddy from “Swingers,” is part of the cast in his latest comedy endeavor.

THE COMPETITION

“Fred Claus” was released at the same time as “No Country for Old Men.” Later, it battled with “This Christmas” and “The Golden Compass.”

It’s up against the epic “Australia,” which probably won’t cut into its target audience. Plus the French-language “A Christmas Tale,” which opened Friday, looks like kind of a downer.

THE REACTION

Umm ... it was pretty much panned across the board as a jumbled project that wasted star power. Still, it raked in more than $97 million worldwide, according to boxofficemojo.com.

The jury’s still out. Check back next week.

WINNER » ‘FOUR CHRISTMASES’

We gotta hand it to Vince Vaughn for sticking with what works. Although “Fred” was a critical flop, it was a hit at the box office. Maybe with “Christmases,” Vaughn can please both the critics and the masses with his essentially realistic holiday comedy.

Holiday

Vince Vaughn banking on Christmas spirit with another seasonal flick

Jim Walsh
REDEYE

Vince Vaughn makes no secret that he’s a Chicago guy.

The star of the upcoming “Four Christmases” grew up in the northern suburbs and was no stranger to the city’s museums and sporting events as a kid, he told RedEye in an interview a few years back. So it should come as no shock that when he lands the cover of Esquire magazine, as he did for its December “genius” issue, one of the questions he’s asked is about Chicago baseball—and his favorite team.

“I root for both teams,” Vaughn tells the magazine. “I’m a Cubs fan ... as a kid, the Cubs were my team.”

But he doesn’t play favorites. “I’ve always rooted for both,” he says. “Because I love Chicago most of all.”

If Chicago is Vaughn’s No. 1 love, starring in holiday films can’t be far behind. The actor seems to be making something of a tradition out of the practice with his latest project, “Four Christmases,” the second holiday flick he’s made in as many years. In the movie, which opens Wednesday, Vaughn and co-star Reese Witherspoon play the blissfully unmarried Brad and Kate, who ditch their families every Christmas for sunny vacations far, far away. The two hit a glitch this time around when their flight gets canceled and they have to visit their divorced parents’ respective holiday gatherings. That’s each of Brad’s folks separately and each of Kate’s for a total of—you guessed it—four Christmases in one day.

Though the dysfunction makes for some funny moments, Vaughn says there is some truth to the comedy about the kinds of family gatherings that don't always come tied with a bow.

"Reese's character Kate and my character, they think they've figured out how to avoid getting hurt in life," Vaughn says in a video released to etonline.com. "And how to really live and be happy, and they go through the journey of seeing each other's families, they realize, 'OK we've learned stuff about each other and maybe that really is living, like knowing stuff and sharing things and experiencing the highs and lows and having someone still love you for who you are. Maybe that's more important.'"

His comment there is not unlike the sentiment he expressed in his interview with Esquire, in which he was asked what it is that makes something funny. His response? Surprisingly verbose.

"I think it's when you have an insight that people can relate to, but you have a perspective that maybe they haven't thought of—that can be funny," he tells the magazine. "If I'm saying a universal truth, but maybe it's something that people don't feel comfortable saying. ... It's a strange take, but at the same time, what you're hitting on is kind of right. You can relate. That's the heart of comedy."

If that's what's guided Vaughn on his movie-making decisions over the past few years, he may be on to something. With hits including "Old School," "Wedding Crashers" and "The Break-Up" under his belt, the famously friendly actor is poised to at least make a dent in the holiday box office. So why should you see it?

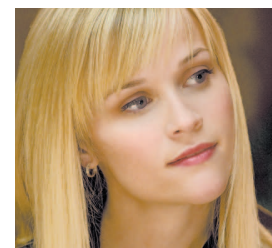

"I think it's so relatable," Vaughn says in the etonline.com video. "We have the fun job of raising the stakes and going even further with it to make it really funny."

Witherspoon unwrapped

Reese Witherspoon's character in the upcoming "Four Christmases" doesn't always have the easiest relationship with the holiday season, but in real life the actress is all about Dec. 25.

"Oh I love Christmas," she says in a video posted on etonline.com. "It's so great. Christmas is always great with kids around, so I'm really lucky I have two great kids."

In the romantic comedy opening Wednesday, Witherspoon plays Kate, who with boyfriend Brad (Vince Vaughn) makes up one half of a happily unmarried San Francisco couple that has made a tradition of ditching their crazy families every Christmas for sunny vacations in exotic locales. The couple's plans get thwarted, however, when their families find out their vacation flight has been canceled—forcing Brad and Kate to visit each of their parents for the holidays (four all together!).

So is Witherspoon's Christmas routine anything like the one depicted in the movie? Not quite.

"We have our traditions, we get to make cookies for Santa before Christmas eve, and hang stockings and decorate the tree," the actress says. "You know it's just nice to have all that kinda warmth and love."

Witherspoon and ex-husband Ryan Phillippe have two children, Ava, 9, and Deacon, 5. She's now linked to Jake Gyllenhaal in the tabloids, but she's mum on marriage speculation.

Asked if she would ever get married again, Witherspoon was non-committal.

"I don't know," she told People magazine. "I don't think about it much." REDEYE

Ladies' man

Vince Vaughn and Reese Witherspoon had nothing but compliments for each other in interviews leading up to the Wednesday release of "Four Christmases." Vaughn says in an etonline.com video that Witherspoon is "very focused on what she does performance-wise." He probably says that about all the gals! Here's a look at other women he's worked with. REDEYE

Elizabeth Banks
"Fred Claus"

The details: Banks plays the flustered Charlene, who has to deal with Vaughn's unconventional ways when his Fred character descends on the North Pole.

Jennifer Aniston
"The Break-Up"

The details: Aniston's Brooke clashes with Vaughn's Gary in a comedy that shows men are from Mars and women are from Venus.

Isla Fisher
"Wedding Crashers"

The details: Fisher's character gets a little too attached to Vaughn in this rom-com about showing up to weddings unannounced—but he likes it in the end.

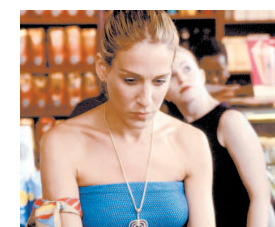

Christine Taylor
"Dodgeball: A True Underdog Story"

The details: She's the got-it-together opposite to Vaughn's Average Joe character in this comedy about a really brutal sport.

Leah Remini
"Old School"

The details: Another example of opposites attracting: Vaughn's Beanie character can't grow up, while Remini's Lara plays the wife who's raising his kids—and him!

Sarah Jessica Parker
"Sex & The City"

The details: Remember when Parker let Vaughn bum a light in one of the earlier episodes where she still smoked? Yeah, we almost forgot about that too.

Holiday lingerie show

Carmen Electra makes a cameo at Enclave (220 W. Chicago Ave. 312-654-0234) Saturday to host the club's holiday lingerie runway show, showcasing haute, sexy stocking stuffers from several local boutiques. The model and "Scary Movie" actress emcees the event and sticks around after for a live set by her fiancé, Korn guitarist Rob Patterson. We suspect the place will be packed, so plan to get there early. Doors open at 9 p.m., the lingerie show starts around midnight. $20. Tickets: neptix.com

"It's Not What You Think, Darling"

Hide from the cold weather and get your culture fix Sunday during the closing day of the 20th annual Polish Film Festival in America. Get a jump on the day at Gallery Theatre (1112 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-486-9612) and take in the 1937 Polish musical "Miss Minister is Dancing" (1 p.m., $8), about a newly elected public official and her cabaret-dancing sister Lola. Or train it to the closing night screening at the Pickwick Theatre (5 S. Prospect Ave., Park Ridge. 847-825-5800) to see the new comedy "It's Not What You Think, Darling" (7 p.m., $15), about a cheating husband who takes his lover to a hotel and runs into his wife.

HEAR IT

Kimya Dawson

The ex-Moldy Peaches folk singer received her well-deserved mainstream revival last year when Ellen Page and Michael Cera sang the Peaches' "Anyone Else But You" at the end of "Juno." Though Kimya Dawson mostly sings solo these days, we don't doubt she'll conjure plenty of movie memories while she's in town for two shows Saturday at Old Town School of Folk Music (4544 N. Lincoln Ave. 773-728-6000). Bring the kiddies to her 5 p.m. performance, featuring songs from her kid-targeted (but strangely adult-applicable) September release, "Alphabutt." Her 8 p.m. concert is for adults, but if we know Dawson, this show should prove as imaginative as the first. With Matty Pop Chart and Erin Tobey. $20 at the door.

DRINK IT

Pre-holiday wine

Shh, hear that? It's the calm before the holiday storm. Enjoy your last Saturday before the official start of the gift-giving season and sip wine at the Pre-Holiday Wine Tasting at Volo Restaurant-Wine Bar (2008 W. Roscoe St. 773-348-4600). Taste eight mostly French selections, including Saint-Martin Marsannay Rose 2007 and Saint-Amour Clos de la Brosse Beaujolais 2005, and get food-pairing recommendations from Volo wine director Shad Martinand and Provenance Food & Wine's Frederick Brown. Nosh on appetizers and stock up on a few discounted bottles. If you need reinforcements, Volo hosts a champagne and dessert tasting on Dec. 13. 3:30 p.m. $20.

Sweet surrender

By M. Kathleen Pratt

The scene: When Old Oak Tap opened in August, it had us at “hello.” But we had trouble getting past “hello.” Until last weekend, we never really set foot inside the place.

You see, the 3-month-old West Town spot’s best feature is its sprawling front patio. In warm weather, you can sit there for hours, working your way through the beer list and snacking on bites from the well-rounded bar menu. It’s entirely possible to become quite smitten from a comfy seat overlooking Chicago Avenue.

But now that the weather’s turned, our late-summer romance is over. We had to find something else to love about the place. And wouldn’t you know, Old Oak launched brunch about four weeks ago.

When we finally did step inside, Old Oak made a good first impression. The roomy, high-ceilinged space is fresh and modern, but details like the tall stacked stone fireplace lend a touch of warmth. It feels as much like a casual restaurant as a bar, especially in the light of day. A bonus for those who prefer conversation to two-point conversions is the lack of TVs—there’s just one flat-screen above the bar and another inconspicuous one across the room.

THE JUICER
WHAT TO EXPECT

The cuisine: Watch your back, Bongo Room.

Your dessert-disguised-as-breakfast (or is it the other way around?) creations may be legendary in this town, but Old Oak is poised to give you a run for your Sunday-morning money. And get this: They’re going to do it single-handedly, with one decadent, ridiculously over-the-top creation.

So what’s the secret weapon?

It’s a brioche French toast (left) drenched in Oaxacan hot chocolate sauce, sprinkled with candied walnuts and topped with a scoop of malted vanilla gelato from local artisan gelato-maker Black Dog ($8). It was—and this is not an honor we confer lightly—the best French toast we’ve had all year.

We have a hunch the Old Oak folks know they have a good thing going, because they don’t even bother with other sweet options on a menu that’s nearly a dozen dishes strong. If you’re unmoved by our ode to Old Oak’s French toast, you’re free to indulge in savorys such as Fat Boy Pie (a big ol’ mess of pulled pork, cheese, tomatoes, black olives, green onions, Green Goddess dressing and French-fried mashed potatoes with a fried egg on top, $11), a bacon-cheddar-egg-tomato breakfast sandwich on ciabatta ($8) and a pretty good version of chilaquiles, save for some slightly undercooked black beans ($9). But did we mention the French toast?

Dreaming of a Colbert Christmas?

Leave it to Stephen Colbert to make Christmas all about Stephen Colbert.

The self-loving host of fake news show “The Colbert Report” pays homage to—OK, parodies—the corny Christmas specials of Perry Como and Bing Crosby with this new musical special.

But don’t think it’s going to go over well with the parents.

“I’m broadcasting legend Stephen Colbert,” the cardigan-clad funny-man says, “I’m so excited right now, I’m sporting a yule log.”

Yes, this is definitely a special for Colbert fans who are used to his biting wit and boastful attitude.

Colbert, trapped in his cabin by a bear, is visited by a jolly bunch of celebrity guests who offer up tunes that send up their public personas, including John Legend, Feist, Elvis Costello, Toby Keith, Willie Nelson and even Jon Stewart.

Most of the holiday tunes they sing would turn Granny’s face red, which only means that they are not to be missed. They’re hilarious, especially Nelson’s “The Little Dealer Boy” and Legend’s sexy ode to “Nutmeg,” with not a single lyric that can be reprinted here. While the “Isn’t this awkward, we’re under the mistletoe” joke gets old, Colbert’s holiday gift to fans is much better than a lump of coal. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

GET IT ON DVD Stephen Colbert promotes the $19.99 DVD version of his special—on sale Tuesday—during the show. Extras include a fireplace video with burning books and a “25 Days of Colbert” calendar.

ALBUM “I Am ... Sasha Fierce” Beyoncé

On her new split-personality double album, “I Am ... Sasha Fierce,” Beyoncé keeps the ballads for herself and outsources all her hip-hop and dance-oriented material to her alter ego, Sasha Fierce—a way to keep both outlying ends of her fan base happy. It’s a brilliant idea, if only the music cooperated. Beyoncé is clearly feeling more lovey-dovey and less bootylicious these days. GLENN GAMBOA, NEWSDAY

TV “24: Redemption” 8 p.m. Sunday, Fox

Aww, how sweet—Jack Bauer hugging a kid. But don’t think Kiefer Sutherland’s super agent is going soft; it’s not long after that scene that he brutally dispatches several rebel soldiers threatening children in the made-up African country of Sangala. This TV movie, a warm-up for January’s Season 7 of the series, finally forces Bauer out of the show’s tired L.A. setting but retains its simplistic “us vs. them” attitude. All the bad guys are creepy and Bauer is our misunderstood savior. Long live Jack. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

DVD “The Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants II”

This sequel finds the girl quartet halfheartedly committed to the ritual of the pants and pursuing new goals after their first year of college. There are no slackers here: Tibby attends New York University, artist Lena goes to Rhode Island School of Design, Blake is studying at Brown and Carmen is a Yalie. In a film that depends as much on chemistry as individual effort, the sisterhood of the pants remains strong. LISA KENNEDY, THE DENVER POST

LOATHE IT

BOOK “Outliers” Malcolm Gladwell

The latest book from the author of “The Tipping Point” and “Blink,” which tries to explain the real reason some people—like Bill Gates and the Beatles—are successful, is peppy, brightly written and provocative in a buzzy sort of way. It is also glib, poorly reasoned and thoroughly unconvincing. Much of what Gladwell has to say about superstars is little more than common sense. MICHIKO KAKUTANI, NYT NEWS SERVICE

VIDEO GAME Crash: Mind Over Mutant

Xbox 360, Wii, $49.99; PlayStation 2, PlayStation Portable, $39.99; Nintendo DS, $29.99

Mind Over Mutant makes a halfhearted stab at a sort of open-world design that theoretically lets you go anywhere, but in execution leads to a lot of repetition and backtracking. It has some clever comedic interludes, but game play is ruined by drab level design and horrible camera angles. LOU KESTEN, AP

'Twilight' comes up cold

New-gal-in-school Bella (Kristen Stewart) becomes infatuated with Edward (Robert Pattinson), the palest kid in class who never eats and has no friends and an apparent staring problem. (Sounds like quite the heartbreaker, no?) Turns out Edward's an immortal vampire—the townspeople are awfully slow to pick up on his family's several warning signs—and he insists he must stay away from Bella or risk giving into his temptation to kill her. Making matters worse is a trio of evil vampires who don't seem to like it when humans hang with their kind.

The buzz: Adapting the first book in author Stephenie Meyer's wildly popular series, director Catherine Hardwicke's ("Thirteen") film has so much anticipation that advance ticket sales were enough to green-light the sequels. Pattinson is mobbed everywhere he goes and, presumably, all babies born this week will come into the world with an opinion on who is the series' hottest character. To that end, a note to fans of the novels who are sharpening their fangs for anyone who speaks badly of "Twilight": This is a review of the movie, not the book.

The verdict: The term "meh" was added to the dictionary this week, and just in time. Hardwicke assumes audiences know everything about everything and thus never establishes the good or bad vampires' agendas (Why don't the latter just hunt everyone at school?).

She also never proves that Bella has any personality outside of loving Edward or explains why the vampires play baseball—which they can only do during thunderstorms, to drown out the immense crack of the bat—when tennis or soccer would be so much less of a hassle. Pattinson's got star quality, but the movie doesn't move nearly as quickly as Edward, stuck in a holding pattern of set-ups that, so far, neither result in much excitement nor promise more to come.

All that's left is some cheap-looking effects and the constant, breathless chill of forbidden love between Edward and Bella, which will only arouse viewers who get off on watching people constantly about to kiss.

MORE OBAMA NEWSObama's Cabinet picks and predictions

President-elect Obama is likely to name Tim Geithner, president of the New York Federal reserve, as Treasury Secretary in a time of intense economic turmoil as he rounds out the upper echelon of his Cabinet, an official close to the incoming chief executive said Friday.

New York Sen. Hillary Clinton, in line to become Secretary of State, said through a spokesman that discussions were "very much on track" for that appointment, but no final arrangement had been made.

Obama also selected Eric Holder, a top Justice Department aide in the Clinton administration, as his attorney general. Separately, officials said New Mexico Gov. Bill Richardson had emerged as a likely pick as Commerce Secretary.

Geithner*Olympic moves

Obama's transition staff released a video message Friday morning that he recorded to boost Chicago's efforts to win the 2016 Olympics. The message was delivered to the European Olympic Committee meeting in Istanbul.

School booked

The Obamas chose private Sidwell Friends School in Washington for daughters Malia and Sasha.

Obama drops by landmark deli

After remaining out of public view for most of the week, President-elect Obama ventured out of his transition office Friday to grab lunch at a Chicago landmark.

Obama left the Kluczynski Federal Building in the Loop at 12:22 p.m. and headed straight for Manny's deli on the Near South Side, where a couple dozen people already were waiting outside.

The president-elect spent a little over 10 minutes inside the restaurant, where he was joined by friend and adviser Valerie Jarrett.

Diners repeatedly shouted "congratulations," as Obama ordered lunch and worked the room wearing a topcoat and scarf.

Asked about a federal bailout for the auto industry, Obama responded, "I got the corned beef."

Earlier, he had asked for "Manny's mustard" on his sandwich. As part of his take-out order, Obama left with two cherry pies, three corned beef sandwiches and paid cash for his tab, $48.34.

Obama shook dozens of hands and posed for photos with the patrons and staff. He signed a photo of himself and Mayor Daley that had been taken in the deli after he won the U.S. Senate primary in 2004.

Owner Ken Raskin, whose father was Manny, had asked Obama to sign the photo for him.

"Axe says hello," Obama said, mentioning top strategist David Axelrod, who frequently dines at the deli.

Germany drops Scientology ban

Germany is dropping its pursuit of a ban on Scientology after finding insufficient evidence of illegal activity, security officials said Friday. Domestic intelligence services will continue to monitor the group, officials said. The German branch of the L.A.-based Church of Scientology has been under observation by domestic intelligence services for more than a decade. Top security officials asked state governments in December to begin gathering information on whether they had sufficient grounds to seek a ban.

Amsterdam 'weed summit'

Amsterdam will close almost a fifth of its marijuana cafes to comply with a national ban on having them near schools, the mayor said Friday. Another city, Eindhoven, said it would start issuing permits to marijuana growers in order to better regulate the trade—if the national government approves. The plans were announced as 33 major Dutch cities held a "weed summit" to discuss the nation's long-standing policy of tolerating marijuana use while routinely arresting growers.

Police search for campus shooter

Authorities in Georgia were continuing to look for a gunman who shot and wounded a student at Savannah State University on Friday, and a SWAT team surrounded a dormitory where the shooter might be, officials said. University spokeswoman Loretta Heyward said she believed students had been alerted by university officials to stay where they were after the shooting that happened between 11 a.m. and noon at the oldest historically black college in Georgia.

Mukasey back after collapse

Attorney General Michael Mukasey returned to work Friday after collapsing during a speech the night before and spurring a 14-hour scare about his health. A Justice Department spokeswoman blamed the 67-year-old's dramatic and public fall on a fainting spell. Determined to prove his fitness, Mukasey checked out of George Washington University Hospital shortly after noon, telling reporters he felt "excellent."

Illinois-Northwestern tradition axed

A 63-year-old tradition is ending Saturday.

The Sweet Sioux Tomahawk, long a symbol of the Illinois-Northwestern football rivalry, is going the way of Chief Illiniwek.

The decision to retire the trophy comes one year after Illinois retired Chief Illiniwek, a tradition that dated to 1926.

The NCAA directed Illinois to remove all Native American imagery from its athletic teams or lose the right to host postseason NCAA events.

"We were directed by the board of trustees through the chancellor's office to retire the trophy," Illinois athletic department spokesman Kent Brown said Friday.

"We're going to be working with Northwestern over the coming months to establish a new series trophy."

The Sweet Sioux Tomahawk trophy, now enclosed in a framed case with the scores of the Northwestern-Illinois games, returned to Champaign last year after the Illini's victory over the Wildcats.

The tradition will end Saturday, when the Illini bring the trophy to Evanston. It will remain at Northwestern no matter who wins Saturday's game.

OK, so maybe I was a little overconfident about the Bears last weekend. But come on, who could have predicted that crushing 37-3 loss to the Packers?

Not me.

At least this Sunday we're up against one of the worst teams in football. That should give us some confidence, right? St. Louis, here we come!

Paterno's last stand?

Rumors swirl—again—over Penn State coach's retirement

Associated Press

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. His contract expires after this season. His hip is so sore it may need surgery. His team is one win away from the Rose Bowl.

Joe Paterno has made a living coaching big games at Penn State, but the regular-season finale Saturday against Michigan State could be historic for one more reason: What if it's the Hall of Famer's last game coaching at Beaver Stadium?

The end of the regular season marks the beginning of the annual discussion among fans and the media about whether Paterno will be back next season. Paterno has said nothing about quitting, and he was gruff after the Indiana game last week when he was asked whether this weekend might be his home finale.

"I haven't even thought about it," the 81-year-old Paterno said before limping off the stage with the help of a cane. His hip and right leg have bothered him since the first week of the season, when he was demonstrating an onside kick at practice. He also brushed aside a broader question about his future on Tuesday.

Paterno has dropped hints, though, that this season won't be his last. Two weeks ago, he talked about how he was looking forward to getting back on the road to recruit.

Penn State has 20 verbal commitments for 2009, according to recruiting services. The latest one, defensive end/tight end Garry Gilliam of Hershey said Paterno told him he wasn't going anywhere for the next couple of years, according to The Patriot-News of Harrisburg.

Talks between Paterno and school President Graham Spanier about his future are on hold until after the season concludes, which could be Jan. 1 at the Rose Bowl if the Nittany Lions win this weekend.

Both sides have said Paterno doesn't need something in writing to keep a job he's had a record 43 seasons, with a resume that includes 382 career wins—first among major college coaches.

All I'm saying is I overheard "handcuffs," "chloroform" and "Tim Tebow" in the same sentence.	Tracy whenever Jo Noah's name comes up.	Microbes that can survive only in hot water.
2 Illinois beating Northwestern would be like Supriya beating Leo so bad that even he can't make it to a bowl.	... Harvard beating Northwestern in a museum-trashing contest.	... Sarah Palin mastering geography.	... totally normal.	... San Jacinto State beating Minnetonka Co-op.
3 Lance Briggs said his team didn't play "Bear football" against the Packers on Sunday. Explain.	Misspoke. I think he meant to say the team didn't play "bearable football."	Less rushing yards allowed, more picnic baskets.	He means they didn't wait until the playoffs to lay that egg.	Oh, he misspoke. He meant they didn't play football, period.	Well, it's hard to get up for Packer games with first place on the line.
4 What should the Bulls take with them to Colorado?	A walking stick with the hopes that they get to peak.	Uniforms—so they don't play bare basketball.	I'm sure Kobe would agree: a good defense attorney.	Skis. Bulls on the slopes would draw more of a crowd than their game.	A molehill.

Together again

Kate and Leo to reunite onscreen

Kate Winslet and Leonardo DiCaprio are getting back together!

The “Titanic” co-stars, part of the reason the 1997 flick about a boat raked in $1.8 billion worldwide to become the biggest modern blockbuster ever, are starring in the upcoming “Revolutionary Road,” which opens in limited release next month.

This is the first time the two actors have been reunited onscreen since Celine Dion belted out “My Heart Will Go On” and Jack and Rose got it on in the hull of the doomed passenger ship. (If you don’t get those references, put “Titanic” on your Netflix queue.)

This time around, Winslet and DiCaprio play Frank and April Wheeler, whose relationship begins in giddy optimism but runs aground amid the monotony of 1950s suburbia.

The fact that this powerhouse onscreen couple is reuniting got RedEye thinking about other famous pairs we’d like to see team up again—and the flicks that would suit them perfectly. AP CONTRIBUTED.

Couple: Steve Carell and Anne Hathaway
Movie: “Get Smart”
Why they should work together again: He’s hot; she’s funny. Or maybe it’s the other way around.
They’d be perfect in: Another outrageous comedy that has a little heart to it.

Couple: Christian Bale and Maggie Gyllenhaal
Movie: “The Dark Knight”
Why they should work together again: His brooding persona and her indie sensibilities play well against each other.
They’d be perfect in: Something where she doesn’t die in the end.

Couple: Robert Downey Jr. and Gwyneth Paltrow
Movie: “Iron Man”
Why they should work together again: Their chemistry helped make “Iron Man” the summer blockbuster it was.
They’d be perfect in: “Iron Man 2.” He’s on board. Is she?

Couple: Those kids from “Cloverfield”
Movie: “Cloverfield”
Why they should work together again: Rob (Michael Stahl-David) and Beth (Odette Yustman) were totally in love! Apocalypse be damned!
They’d be perfect in: Anything else produced by J.J. Abrams.

Couple: Sarah Jessica Parker and Chris Noth
Movie: “Sex and the City”
Why they should work together again: Nobody ever gets tired of the Mr. Big-Carrie Bradshaw thing, right?
They’d be perfect in: A “SATC” sequel. It’s been rumored!

DID YOU KNOW?

Kate Winslet’s husband, Sam Mendes, directed “Revolutionary Road,” which includes a lusty love scene between his wife and Leonardo DiCaprio. “Those scenes are always difficult, even when it’s not one’s wife,” Mendes told the AP.

KAKURO EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redeyechicago.com/answers.

The name game

Bronx Mowgli.

That was the name everyone was talking about Friday when news broke that Ashlee Simpson-Wentz and Pete Wentz are the proud parents of a baby boy.

"Ashlee, Pete and baby Bronx are all healthy and happy, and thank everyone for their well wishes!" a rep for the couple said in a statement.

While they were no doubt beaming over baby, the gossip world weighed in on the kid's name (Mowgli was the name of the dude in Disney's "The Jungle Book").

"Baby Name Bible" author Linda Rosenkrantz even told Us Weekly the name was the "biggest double whammy" in the world of "bizarre or unusual baby names."

Paris' real BFF

Hilton and Madden
GETTY IMAGES

Even though Paris Hilton and Benji Madden mutually split because of their busy work schedules, she says they're still, like, really good friends.

So where exactly do they stand now?

"He's such an amazing man, he's my best friend, he's been so great to me, so loyal," Hilton said.

"I'm still in love with him."

THE VELVET ROPE

Winfrey

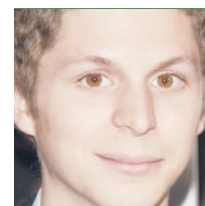

Oprah's cheapest things

If you were looking to Oprah Winfrey's annual "Favorite Things" show for ideas on luxe, pricey gifts, you're out of luck this year.

Oprah's giving away more thrifty items on the show Wednesday because of the economy, according to a statement from "The Oprah Winfrey Show" on usmagazine.com.

"They're some of Oprah's favorite things, but this time there's a twist ... they cost next to nothing!" the statement says.

Man, we were really hoping for more $42 soap sets this year.

Cera

'Arrested' drama?

Is Michael Cera resisting an "Arrested Development" movie?

E! Online is reporting that someone from the cast is against making a movie based on the canceled cult-favorite Fox sitcom.

Not that we have much to back this up, but we're guessing it might be Cera, who has said in the past that he didn't see the need to do the movie.

We're going to have to wait and see how this little, ahem, development shakes out.

Sweetin and Herpin
GETTY IMAGES FILE

Splitsville for Sweetin

Just a few months after Jodie Sweetin started shooting a reality show about her family, Sweetin and her husband are splitting.

Sweetin—best known as Stephanie Judith Tanner on "Full House" and, later, as a recovering meth addict—filed papers Wednesday in Orange County for legal separation from Cody Herpin, her husband of 16 months, according to people.com.

Sweetin told People in September that her new reality show was to be "kind of like a 'Tori & Dean' vibe, but we're a little more rock and roll."

No word yet on the fate of the show, which was to be about her "getting back in the business" and being a new mom.
